Student Wellbeing Centre Fundraiser

Rutherford College

Student wellbeing underpins every aspect of a student's schooling, from their ability to learn in class, to being able to build positive relationships.

At Rutherford, wellbeing is a fundamental component for all of our students to enjoy a positive school learning experience.

Rutherford College is pleased to announce our new Wellbeing Centre. The purpose of this facility is to bring all of our pastoral, health, and wellbeing services together under one roof.

This facility will include.

- A Health Centre including two nurses and a physiotherapist
- A whanau meeting room for when multi agency supports are needed
- The ability to house all our deans and wider pastoral care team including attendance and our community engagement officer
- Two offices and a quiet space for our Guidance Counsellors to work
- A dedicated receptionist to welcome students and whanau on arrival.

To enable the build of our Wellbeing Centre, we are asking our school whanau and wider community for support by purchasing a special kotuku bird. Each bird purchased will become part of an art installation, which will be proudly displayed in the Wellbeing Centre, acknowledging your support towards our students and whanau at Rutherford College.

For a donation of $300, each kotuku can be engraved with up to two lines of 16 characters (including spaces), with either individual, family or business names and will serve as a lasting testament to the community that has backed this important cause.

This is your opportunity to give to the wellbeing of our students, and our way to forever recognise the generosity of the people who have supported the school.

This beautiful bird is one of the rarest birds in New Zealand with a population of around 100-120 birds.

It has attained almost mythical status, because of their rarity and beauty. Kotuku occupies an important place in Maori mythology and to compare a visitor to a kōtuku was a compliment of the highest order.
